THE STATE FAIR

The prime object of the 1918 Missouri State Fair is "To make the enormous natural, manufacturing, and agricultural resources of the commonwealth of Missouri fully effective in the people's service in winning the war." This quotation is taken from the premium list of the Missouri State Fair to be held at Sedalia, August 10, 1918. It shows the lines along which the fair is being organized and points to the occasion as that of a great, patriotic war exhibit.

Community undertakings of this kind are not wholly dependent upon those in charge for their success. Those whom the directors represent have their responsibilities. The State Fair belongs to the people of Missouri and it is their duty to use the opportunity to enable themselves to become better Missourians. It is their fair. It is for them. Upon them depends its success.

EVERYBODY'S OPPORTUNITY

Twenty-five cents at a time is enough to buy a thrift stamp. Twenty stamps get a Baby Bond. Anyone is able to own a bond. If these small sums were not needed for thrift stamps and Baby Bonds would not have been offered. In proportion to their ability to buy those with a few dollars have as much responsibility as those with millions.

The might of a democracy is to be found in the common man. Only to the extent to which he is accorded and accepts public responsibility is democracy worth while. The War Savings Stamp is Uncle Sam's tender of responsibility to the average citizen. Every man, woman and child should buy and buy again.

Don't forget the birds. We saw a robin of cleanly habits expressing his opinion about man's forgetfulness one hot day last week. He was trying to take a bath in the remnants of the little brook that once flowed across the university campus. He rolled and splashed faithfully in the muddy puddle; then flew to a limb where he chattered vigorously. If ever a bird used strong language that bird did. Set out a dish of water for him in your yard; he will chirrup the blues away.

Red noses are due to other than bibulous reasons sometimes. The bright sun bringeth on the day—also the rose-colored proboscis.

Columbia negroes are showing their patriotism by forming a Red Cross auxiliary and a Home Guard company.

Until some one invents a noiseless lawn mower there is still a path of glory open for the young inventor.

Food Hint for Today

How to Can Vegetable Mixtures.

Attractive and economical vegetable mixtures to be served in salads, with omelets, escalloped dishes, and garnishes for meat dishes can be canned at home. This by-product may be canned often when small quantities are left from packing different vegetables whole. Any desired combinations may be made. Vegetables maturing in the same season should be used. A good combination for the spring would be carrots, peas, string beans, and onions. A mixture which could be made from the fall garden might consist of peppers, celery, onions, and small lima beans. (Beets can not be used in such mixtures because they discolor the entire contents of the jar.) All these vegetables are prepared separately as for canning and packed in layers in previously boiled jars. Each layer should be packed as tightly as possible, before the next is added. When the jar is filled, cover with brine (2½ ounces of salt to 1 gallon of water.) Partially seal jars.

Processing with steam under pressure is recommended. Process pint jars 45 minutes under pressure of 10 pounds. Seal immediately and cool in a draft-free place. When cold test for leaks, and store in a cool, dark, dry place.

If the intermittent boiling process is used, boil for 90 minutes on the first day, and 60 minutes on the second and third days. Before each subsequent boiling the covers must be loosened, and after each boiling the covers must be completely tightened to make sealing complete. Cool, test for leaks, and store.

If a single-period boiling process is used, place jars in the canner and boil for at least three hours. Seal, cool, test, and store.—U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Preserving the Peace.

If "It takes two to make a quarrel," it is equally true that it takes the good will of both to preserve an active friendliness between two great nations. Not so very long ago, the United States and Canada quietly celebrated a peace maintained without a fort or a gun on either side of the 3,500-mile border. More recently, the State Department at Washington has called attention to the fact that there has been completed a similar hundred-years' peace between Argentina and the United States. It thus seems evident that when two nations wish to do so, it is fairly easy to preserve between them harmony and good faith.—Christian Science Monitor.

"CAN IRELAND STAND ALONE?"

Sinn Feiners Post Bills Telling Why Ireland Should Be a Republic.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

DUBLIN, May 25.—The most important electioneering document which is being used by the Sinn Feiners in their contest against the Irish Nationalists in East Cavan is an appeal for the establishment of a republic in Ireland. The Associated Press correspondent, in a tour of the East Cavan district, found this document posted everywhere on public buildings and at cross-roads, generally surmounted by a small Sinn Fein flag. It was in the form of a small handbill, "privately printed by Arthur Griffith," who is now interned in England.

The document reads in part: "Can Ireland stand alone? Is she rich enough to set up as an independent nation?"

"These are questions which can best be answered by comparing Ireland with small nations of Europe that have prospered in freedom. See how Ireland holds her own in size: Belgium has 11,000 square miles; Holland, 13,000; Denmark, 15,000; Switzerland, 16,000; Ireland, 32,000; Serbia, 33,000; Portugal, 35,000; Greece, 42,000.

"In population also she is well to the fore. Norway, Denmark and Switzerland; all have less than her 4,400,000 population. Serbia, Bulgaria and Greece have only one or two hundred thousand more.

"What do these nations pay each year to run their business—and in most cases do their business better than big nations? Here are the annual bills: Serbia, $5,250,000; Greece, $5,400,000; Switzerland, $7,000,000; Bulgaria, $7,000,000; Norway, $7,200,000; Denmark, $9,500,000.

"Dublin Castle rule cost Ireland last year $23,700,000. All these small nations keep their own armies and three of them have navies as well. It is cheaper, therefore, to be free than in slavery."

PORTUGUESE PRESIDENT SPEAKS

Reiterates Determination to Carry on War on Side of Allies.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

LISBON, May 15.—The people of Lisbon gave President Paes an ovation, when he assumed the duties of his office on "Proclamation Day."

Doctor Paes, the first Portuguese president elected by universal suffrage, received more than half a million votes. His opponents refrained from voting.

He was elected in the face of the most bitter campaign, threats of death being freely made against prospective voters, if they dared journey to the polls and drop their ballot. "If you vote, you die," were the words written

The official proclamation took place at the Lisbon City Hall. People lined the streets and quays, from the President's Palace to the City Hall, where double cordons of police vainly attempted to keep the crowd back. President Paes, a lithe, martial figure, remarkably young looking for his 46 years, escorted by his guard of honor, ascended the dais. On his right was General Bernardiston, chief of the British Mission, and next to him, the military attaché of the United States, General Brainard, and several other officers of the Allied legations.

President Paes first granted a general amnesty for all political and military crimes and said that all the exiles would be allowed to return to Portugal.

He spoke of the insidious anti-patriotic campaign that had been waged against his government, based on the
